Colleagues,

It is with a sense of urgency that I reach out to request your attendance on Wednesday, October 5 for the Chancellor's Office System Webinar on Undocumented Students in California. With the future of Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) relying on a decision by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, it is more important than ever for the system to unite. Not very long ago, it was common to hear the expression Undocumented and Fearless; however, this is no longer the case. We should not wait for a decision to be made before reassuring students that they can rely on us and that we are here for them. Please join us for a robust discussion on how California's community colleges continue to illuminate pathways to success for students, as well as new policy investments. A distinguished roster of speakers, including students and alumni of community colleges, a best-selling author, an anthropologist, and advocates for equity, will join us at this event.

Chancellor's Office System Webinar:

Undocumented in California: Healing and Rebuilding Trust as Levers for Student Success

Wednesday, October 5, 2022 | 9 a.m. – 10 a.m

It has been twenty years since the passage of AB 540 (Firebaugh) and ten years after the establishment of DACA and yet, to be an undocumented student in California still means planning your future one day at a time. Promises of federal reform have been broken, a global health pandemic that has left thousands of uninsured immigrants sick and grieving, and mounting mental health challenges have led to many students putting a pause on their education. As we consider strategies to support undocumented student success, healing and rebuilding their trust need to be at the core. This webinar will focus on how and why California community colleges continue to serve as beacons of opportunity for our students. Participants will hear about recent policy investments and hear from current students and alumni on the continuity of safe, welcoming learning environments supportive of student success.

We hope that you will join us on October 5, 2022 at 9:00 a.m.
